Introduction

The seasons of life highlight different needs and desires within our hearts. Sometimes we are in need of healing and restoration, other times we desire to live life differently and want someone to align with us in our goals. At other times we long to go deeper into God and need a companion to help us listen to God or find a quiet place to rest and hear God in the silence. In these important seasons, there are resources to help support and encourage us so we can continue in our journey with God, discovering more of who we are and how we are to live whole lives.

There are four sections in this booklet:

¹Counseling

²Spiritual Direction

³Quiet Places

⁴Pastoral Appointments

Take some time to familiarize yourself with all the resources to see what would be most helpful to you in your season of life.

God bless you in your becoming!

Counseling

Choosing a Counselor

Selecting a counselor is an important decision you will make during your healing journey. We believe that working through the process of healing from our wounds and its pain is not possible without God, the Source of all healing. Without Jesus in the healing process, counseling may help you understand your pain, but will not be able to provide deep healing of the soul. It is important to choose a counselor who shares this belief and can walk with you through your healing.

How do I begin?

Rather than selecting the first counselor you find, we recommend interviewing a few counselors to discern which one may be the best fit. You may develop a list of names through a variety of sources, such as looking through this brochure, by asking friends for names of counselors they have found helpful, or by contacting others you trust.

How do I know if a counselor has experience working with my particular issues?

When you make the first phone contact, describe your specific issues. Ask if he or she has had experience counseling individuals with this area in the past. Competent counselors will welcome your inquiries.

How do I choose one counselor over another?

During the initial session, you will have an opportunity to ask questions in more detail. Feel free to ask anything you feel is necessary for you to feel comfortable with the counselor. Questions may include: What is your experience in this area? What does the counselor expect in the relationship? Incomplete or confusing answers may indicate this counselor will not be helpful to you. Always ask for clarification if the answer isn't clear to you.

How do I know I can trust this person?

Trust is a difficult issue for most of us in healing. You have the right to feel reasonably comfortable with the counselor you choose. However, a sense of anxiety or discomfort is common when starting a new relationship. Meeting with someone else to talk about painful past experiences will not be easy. Together, you can decide if your sense of discomfort is because of the challenge of therapy or because you are sensing that this particular counselor is not appropriate for you.

Is it important that a counselor be licensed?

When you first contact a counselor, ask about licensure. A licensed counselor has education and training and has successfully passed an oral and written examination in their field. However, finding a licensed counselor does not guarantee competence or a fit for you. There are also skilled and competent unlicensed counselors, but we suggest you get solid recommendations before making your decision. Some counselors are considered to be “interns” which means they are in the process of gaining a clinical license. Interns are legally able to provide counseling under the supervision of a licensed counselor.

Is counseling really worth it?

The point is, you are worth it. Your healing journey will not be easy. It may be costly both financially and emotionally, but your healing is worth the investment and sacrifice. Counseling can be an invaluable ingredient in the recovery process.

Parts of “Choosing a Counselor” were adapted from the National Association of Christian Recovery Resource Directory, 1995. Used by permission.

How to Use Abbreviations

We will use abbreviations to help you find a therapist that will meet your particular needs. There are two sets of abbreviations. The first set will relate to “who” they treat, and the second set will relate to their specializations. Two charts follow to tell you what these abbreviations stand for.

Modalities (“who” is treated)

Need additional guidance?

If you still have questions, or desire to speak with someone about choosing a counselor, you can leave a message with the Care team at Church of the Open Door at (763)416-5846 ext 1331. May God give you the courage to make this important step toward healing.

Spiritual 2 Direction

What is “Spiritual Direction”?

Spiritual direction, sometimes referred to as spiritual guidance or spiritual friendship, is an on-going relationship for the purpose of noticing God’s presence in and through all of life. The relationship centers on the directee’s relationship with God as revealed in on-going commitment to intentional prayer and spiritual practices.

During the meeting of about one hour, director and directee seek to enter a prayerful atmosphere where together they can be attentive to the Holy Spirit together. The director serves as a co-listener to God as the directee is willing to enter into an honest relationship with the director.

The direction relationship is based in the understanding that God is at work in every life - both before the relationship begins and after it ends.

Direction and Therapy: Some Differences

It should be noted that there are distinctions between spiritual direction and therapeutic relationships. In general it might be said that therapy and counseling deal primarily with problem areas of one’s life and attempt to bring healthy resolution to issues. Spiritual direction is concerned with finding and responding to God (in the midst of pain or disorder as well as in the rest of life). Problem/issue solving is not the primary focus of direction.

Finding a Director

Begin with prayer—asking God to guide your search and to open your eyes to the possibilities available to you. It will probably take some time to find the right person for you. If God is in the felt need for a director, however, then it is safe to assume that the Spirit will eventually provide the resources you need. The key is to remain patient yet diligent in the waiting, to trust God in the process, remaining attentive to the direction of the Spirit in all of life.

Choosing a Director

In a direction relationship, it is important for there to be a mutual sense of the rightness of the relationship and a concern for open, honest, clear communication and a reverence for the unique way God is working in the individuals involved. Coupled with this is a mutual dependence upon the Spirit at work in the relationship. It is helpful to set up four or five meetings and then evaluate how things are going. After that, periodic evaluations are encouraged so that what was begun as a right thing does not continue past its time.

How is a spiritual director trained?

The ministry of spiritual direction involves a calling from God coupled with a confirmation of that call by the community of faith in which the director is connected with. Adding to this calling, a training program helps deepen a person's knowledge of spiritual development and skill in listening to others. Training usually involves a two year program and on-going supervision. Completing a training program alone does not mean the person should be involved in spiritual direction. It does mean the person has purposefully been in a learning environment to gain understanding of the ministry of spiritual direction. Calling, confirmation, knowledge, and skills are all necessary qualities in a spiritual director.

Adapted from Shalem Institute for Spiritual Formation informational brochure on spiritual direction.

Quiet 3 Places

Twin Cities Area Retreat Centers

Why Make a Silent Retreat?

In our fast-paced lives, the voice of God is easily drowned out by the buzz of noise and activity around us. Dedicated time in quiet is needed to settle down and be present to the reality of how life is lived and the deeper desires of the heart, whether it is a walk in the woods, kneeling in a beautiful chapel, journaling a life circumstance, or waiting in prayerful attentiveness. We can hear more readily God's voice when we set time apart to be still and listen.

On retreat, the presence of God enfolds and carries the retreatant to new places of intimacy, bringing transformation and renewal. God delights to be with his children. Going on retreat is one place to know deep down God's delight in us.

Our retreat resources have been recommended to us by staff and other members of Open Door. If at any time you find the resources unhelpful in supporting your spiritual journey, please contact the Care team office to let us know.

Pastoral 4 Appointments

What is a Pastoral Appointment?

A pastoral appointment is a scheduled meeting with a member of the pastoral staff to team to talk through an issue or particular spiritual concern. The one-time appointment normally includes a time of listening and prayer with assessment and referral to other resources for continued healing, growth and support.

Because Open Door does not provide ongoing counseling, we will refer individuals and couples to therapists, listed in this booklet, to develop ongoing therapeutic relationships. We may also recommend other resources within the community which can provide better services for ongoing places of support and care. However, at times it may be helpful to continue together for a set period of time. This would be determined by the Pastor at the time of your appointment.

If you would like to schedule a pastoral appointment, please call the Care Coordinator during regular office hours at (763) 416-5846 ext 1300.

If you come to Open Door during regular hours, and do not have an appointment scheduled, we cannot guarantee that a pastor will be available to meet with you. A staff member will assess the situation. If the situation is not urgent, we will offer to schedule an appointment at a later date. If there is a need for immediate pastoral attention, the pastoral staff or ministry team member who is next available will meet with you for a short appointment and, if necessary, help you find other resources. We highly encourage you to call ahead to see if someone is available to meet with you that day.

Prayer

We encourage you to open your hearts and lives to those around you, ask them for prayer, as well as trust God will hear and respond. In most cases, it is best (and easiest) to receive prayer from the people with whom you share life on an ongoing basis.

Prayer Resources

- Weekend Prayer Team - Available after all three services.
- Prayer Line - Leave a message at ext 1374.
